RESEARCH IN PROGRESS:

Co-authored with Patrick Miller (University of Cincinnati), "The Psychology of Partisan Polarization: Red and Blue States of Mind," manuscript under review at the American Journal of Political Science

Co-authored with Donald Searing and Fred Solt, "Are Strong Supporters of Human Rights Excessively Individualistic, Egotistic, Anti-Social, Disengaged Democrats?," manuscript under review at the British Journal of Political Science

Co-authored with Donald Searing, "Conceptions of Rights in Great Britain and the United States," manuscript under review at Political Psychology

Co-authored with Patrick Miller. Unpublished book manuscript. Debating Same-Sex Marriage: Identity Politics and Democracy. We are in the process of revising a manuscript that I had previously completed. The revision will encompass the addition of three new data analyses, including an experimental analysis, which has been completed and presented at the 2011 MWPSA. Currently, coders are working on a data set of news articles from 1995-2012. When they are done, analyses can proceed.

With Patrick Miller, "Civility and Partisan Politics". We conducted a framing experiment in spring 2012 on elite cues and civility; we will collect data on the 2012 Cooperative Congressional Election Study (CCES) using new measures of civility that we developed in the experiment. While waiting for the CCES data, we may explore outside funding pending further analyses of the spring 2012 data.

With Donald Searing & Melanie Green (UNC Psychology Department), a research project on "Leadership & Virtue". Data collection is currently under way, and is being supported by a grant from the Arete Foundation. The first paper is on "integrity and leadership," and will be completed during the 2012-2013 academic year.

With Mark Yacoub (UNC graduate student), Emotions and Framing. We conducted an experiment in spring 2012 and will be continuing work over the summer.
